So first off, because it is the easiest to talk about. is the helmet just like all the other DLC helmets in this series of reviews it gives -30% damage reduction. this excludes the hat from the last review where you can see about it in that review. of course. the helmet is the classic edgy look. hey im a military boi. and yeah I go with that. it fits the survivor look in my mind. and I get to be edgy! next is the beautiful pet. this is one of the only two DLC pets I use. because this drone boi makes you take less time to target enemies. and you do more damage! it is extremely good in solo and even in mulitplayer. also it beeps alot. beep boop! also be sure to not mistake it for an enemy as it flies to you real quick like through the trees. and the gem of DLC the gun! this is god like early game and stays godlike through out the rest of the game. although you will get a very noticeable damage drop if you decide to stick with stock ammo like me. and will go from 1 hit headshot kills. 1 shot headshot then bodyshot. then 2 headshots to kill. but it is also good for spamming down the horde after you if you decide not to charge your shots. and with all the atatchments you can make it your spray down machine you always wanted. although it will also be outgunned by craftable 8mm assault rifles. it looks so much better! and you can upgrade it eventually to be stronger once again! so win, win! woo! sorry for this one being messy! I am damn tired it is 2:15am when I finished this review. hope this was somewhat interesting.. assault rifle and drone are useful, with cheap price tag.. I really like this pack, since during the start of the game it really gives the player an advantage over the zombies, and you don't have to use the starter baseball bat. I really wish that this included a kevlar vest, which would act like protection and extra storage, that would've been really cool. But other than that, this is a really cool DLC pack.
